

Political Poster and Graphics Collections, June 2023

This collection features works that explore or respond to political and social uprisings. The first three sets are collections of posters and other graphics from Chile. The last portfolio features images of Che Guevara from a variety of artists, representing several different art collectives.

To understand these works, it's important to understand the context in which they were created. The last decade in Chile has brought intense political and social oscillations, which have been felt most prominently among marginalized classes. From 2019 to the end of 2021, Chileans took to the streets to protest against rising inequality, cost of living increases, environmental degradation, and other social justice issues. These demonstrations were met with excessive force and violence from the country's national police force, the Carabineros. Galvanized by the response to the protests, Chilean citizens began fighting even harder for police reform and structural changes in the country.

In 2021, Chileans elected former student activist and leftist Gabriel Boric as president of the country, who spearheaded a new constitution draft.

However, a national plebiscite voted down the document in September 2022, with conservatives and some centrists saying it was too radical. Many people living in poorest areas also rejected it, citing the fact that they didn't trust the politicians who led the process. A rise in violent crime and inflation may have also played a role in the outcome. Since most Chileans still wanted a new constitution, Congress went back to the drawing board, and approved a drafting process which will conclude with another plebiscite in December 2023. However, this time José Antonio Kast's Republican party has secured a right-wing majority in Congress, and the progressives did not achieve enough support to gain power of veto.

The poster collections featured here capture these immense, ongoing national changes, showing the diverse perspectives, struggles, and realities of Chileans today through a variety of artistic techniques, including serigraphy, risography, and xylography, among others. Created by a variety of independent artists and collectives, many of the works are difficult to find and purchase.

The last set in this grouping features engravings and serigraphs that pay tribute to Che Guevara's life and work five decades after his assassination in Bolivia. The works explore Che as a historical figure, showing how his iconic image is an important representation of resistance and, more broadly, a historical symbol of revolution. The work was spearheaded by Antonio Valverde and Felipe Hernández, founders of the Metropolitan Convention of Artists and Culture Workers (Convención Metropolitana de Artistas y Trabajadores de la Cultura).

50 AÑOS DEL CHE. 1967-2017. EL HOMBRE NUEVO

37 items

This portfolio features engravings and serigraphs that pay tribute to the life and work of Ernesto “Che” Guevara five decades after his assassination in Bolivia. The artists seek to express multiple versions of Che and amplify him as a historical symbol for revolution and resistance against inequality, while at the same time creating distance from his image’s typical commercial uses and the capitalist law of value that reduces everything to merchandise and profit.

The images are the result of a call for art launched by the Metropolitan Convention of Artists and Culture Workers (Convención Metropolitana de Artistas y Trabajadores de la Cultura). The convention was originally an organized response of urban artists and cultural workers who wanted to support and encourage the indigenous Zapatista uprising. Since then, CMATC has promoted political-artistic actions around relevant historical events by assuming a critical and participatory place as graphic producers united by their commitment to fight for resistance movements alongside marginalized people.

POSTERS FOR THE REVOLT. EXHIBITION OF CHILEAN
POLITICAL POSTERS AND GRAPHICS BY PAULO CUELLO
ALMONACID (2020 - 2021)

52 items

Printed on synthetic paper / 250 grams / 100 x 70 cm format

In this poster and graphics collection, artist Paulo Cuello Almonacid uses art to establish a bridge between various organizations (including autonomous media outlets, territorial assemblies, and other revolutionary groups and committees) that drive Chile's social movements. Almonacid achieves this more specifically through the utilization of easily-identifiable graphic elements, as well as a traditional style inspired by wood cuts or engravings, techniques that are deeply rooted in the history of protest art in the country and throughout Latin America. This body of work was sparked by the political turmoil and civil unrest that began in 2019, when Chileans took to the streets to protest against rising inequality, cost of living increases, environmental degradation, and other social justice issues.

Importantly, Almonacid's work reflects the diverse struggles within this movement that led to and shaped it, while also emphasizing the collaboration between those struggling. Ultimately, he shows how various social battles can integrate into a unified movement while still retaining their unique characteristics.

From a technical standpoint, this art is created digitally to ensure efficiency and ease of use. After its creation, it's distributed to various organizations, who have the freedom to circulate it as they wish, in various formats and throughout different platforms, including social media. It is important to note that its circulation is deliberately reliant on the collaborative and organic nature of those involved, and aims to serve their respective objectives.
